

Representing your interests with Project & Construction Management for industrial food process projects

In the same way that a well-designed process leads to smooth operations, a well-organized project leads to its successful execution. With the experience of managing design/build projects across multiple industry segments, Wright Process can bring this same experience to your project, serving as owner's rep, project manager, or construction manager. Our unique philosophy on process projects is that the process itself always comes first. There is no need for construction or other work without the process system, as that makes your sellable product and thus fuels your business. Our services focus on the production goals and drive all metrics – schedule, budget, risk, quality – to this end. We can help navigate all nuances of a project from the perspective of process operators and managers, as if we were the ones operating your plant.

Wright Process Systems: Representing your process goals

Our experience as project managers, construction managers, and owner's reps includes:

- Budget creation, validation, and active management
- Schedule development and active management
- Constructability, feasibility, and discovery initiatives
- Bid package and scope generation
- Bid tender management
- Specification development, review, and coordination
- Contractor and vendor qualification
- Food process-specific construction recommendations
- Permit and regulatory requirement development and submittals
- Vendor and supplier management
- Gap analysis
- Trade coordination and oversight
- Balance of plant requirements review, including self-performing missing scope areas
- Site activity audits

WRIGHT
Process Systems

Engineering • Installation • Service

- Close-out package management, including training, spare/consumable part inventories, and SOP generation
- Business insight, including HR, operations, maintenance, safety, facilities, and production impacts of project decisions

A representative who manages with you, not over you

We will not take the control of the project away from your team. Wright Process is a partner. We are here to offer support and guidance that will strengthen already great projects into stellar projects. Draw on our technical knowledge and hands-on experience to round out your project team.

Wright Process Systems is your partner in process system success

Visit wrightps.com to learn more about The Wright Advantage, our collaborative, customer-service-centric workflow.

info@wrightps.com
www.wrightps.com

State Contractor's Licenses:
CA #574101 | AZ #302611 | OR #217842

209.369.2795

88 Commerce Street, Lodi, CA 95240